Michael Rowe

President & Chief Operating Officer

Michael Rowe was named the Nets President on October 18, 1995 when Nets Ownership hired the head of the Meadowlands Sports Complex to run their franchise. Rowe had been working with the franchise since it moved to the Meadowlands in 1981, and had an integral part in working with the Nets in his most recent position of Executive Vice President of the Meadowlands Arena and Giants Stadium, a capacity in which he served since 1987.

Rowe's responsibilities have him overseeing both the Nets business as well as basketball operations. Since his arrival last year, Rowe helped engineer the Nets two blockbuster trades involving Derrick Coleman and Kenny Anderson, and was responsible for luring John Calipari from the college ranks and placing him charge of the Nets basketball fortunes.

On the business side, Rowe has already enhanced the Nets' visibility on both radio and television. Michael led the negotiations which changed the Nets radio signal to 50,000 watt WOR-710 AM. This five-year deal will provide Nets fans with a powerful signal by which they can follow the team, both in and out of state. The multi-year television contract with SportsChannel will also provide more exposure for the Nets in the metropolitan area.

Under Rowe's leadership at the Meadowlands, a number of significant firsts were achieved. Both the arena and stadium have received numerous industry awards including a record eight "Arena of the Year" awards as well as six "Stadium of the Year" awards. Michael was personally honored as 'Executive of the Year' a record four times. Rowe also directed the complex to some impressive attendance marks. In 1994, both the arena and stadium saw 5.59 million people come through the turnstiles—a Complex record. Since 1988, at least four million people a year have attended various events at both facilities.

Rowe oversaw Giants Stadium, which is the only facility in the country housing two NFL franchises, plus Rutgers football, as well as major outdoor concert events. In 1994, seven World Cup soccer matches were held at the stadium, and it was the only site to earn in excess of one million dollars in event profit.

The Arena hosts a wide variety of events besides professional basketball and hockey. Concerts and family entertainment, such as the circus and ice shows are held regularly. Rowe also played an important role in bringing the NCAA Final Four, college basketball's premier event, to the Continental Airlines Arena in 1996.

Rowe brings a tremendous financial background to the team, which will provide the Nets with firm direction in dealing with the NBA's salary cap, as well as broadcast and arena negotiations.

He is credited with raising operating profits 230 percent for the Sports Complex from $5.7 million in 1986 to $18.9 million in 1994, including a 77 percent increase over 1993 ($10.66 million).

Rowe is a graduate of Seton Hall University and received a M.A. from Rider University. He and his wife Connie, and their two daughters, Allyson and Lisa, reside in Cranbury, New Jersey.

John Calipari

Executive Vice President of Basketball Operations and Head Coach

John Calipari enters the NBA following the most successful season in his eight-year stint at the University of Massachusetts and the most successful in the school's history. The 1995-96 campaign saw the Minutemen compile a 35-2 record, which included a 15-1 mark in the Atlantic 10 Conference. UMass was the regular season and tournament champions in the A-10, and advanced to the Final Four of the NCAA Tournament, where the Minutemen fell to the University of Kentucky in the semifinals. This performance was the furthest the Minutemen had ever advanced in NCAA Tournament play. As a result of UMass' play last season, Calipari was named the NABC National Coach of the Year, the Boost/Naismith Coach of the Year, The Sporting News National Coach of the Year, the Atlantic 10 Conference Coach of the Year and the Basketball Times East Region Coach of the Year.

John Calipari was hired to lead UMass on April 25, 1988, his first collegiate head coaching position after six seasons as an assistant at Kansas and Pittsburgh. He proceeded to transform a school that had suffered 10 consecutive losing seasons into what would become one of the elite programs in college basketball. In his first campaign, the Minutemen would experience their only losing season in the Calipari tenure, going 10-18 overall and 5-13 in the A-10. That would be the last time under Calipari that UMass would be below the .500 mark in either their overall record or conference play.

Over the course of the next seven seasons, the Calipari-led Minutemen would reach the NIT twice, including one Final Four, win five consecutive A-10 regular season and Tournament championships and make five consecutive appearances in the NCAA Tournament, reaching the "Sweet 16" and the "Elite Eight" once and of course, the semifinal game this past April.

Calipari's coaching exploits did not go unnoticed by those who cover college basketball. During his stay in Amherst, in addition to the 1996 awards previously noted, John Calipari was a Naismith National Coach of the Year finalist in 1994 & 1995, was A-10 Coach of the Year in 1993 & 1994 and was the USBWA District I Coach of the Year in 1993. His overall mark stands at 193-71, a .731 winning percentage, with an 11-5 mark in NCAA Tournament play.

John and his wife Ellen have two daughters, Erin Sue and Megan Rae. (see page 259 for Calipari Family Photo: John, Megan, Erin and Ellen).

John Nash

General Manager

In 1916, Charles W. Nash founded the Nash Motors Company, which became one of the moving forces at the forefront of the fledgling United States auto industry. On June 26, 1996, the New Jersey Nets hired John Nash as their General Manager of Basketball Operations, a move designed to help bring the new-energy Nets into the forefront of the NBA.

John Nash brings a wealth of NBA experience to his position with the Nets, the type of experience that Coach Calipari had stated he would surround himself with as he re-shaped the Nets basketball fortunes. Since his arrival, Nash has been instrumental in the signing of free-agents Robert Pack and David Benoit, and aquiring Vincent Askew by trade from Seattle.

For the past five-plus years, John Nash was the Vice President/General Manager of the Washington Bullets, a team he helped transform into a formidable group of young talent that challenged for playoff contention. Nash accomplished this task by building on his reputation as one of the NBA's shrewdest traders, engineering a number of deals which helped elevate the Bullets within the Eastern Conference.

Hired on June 18, 1990, Nash wasted little time in altering the face of the Bullets, trading Jeff Malone to Sacramento for Pervis Ellison, the 1992 Most Improved Player, after only two weeks on the job.

Prior to the 1992-93 campaign, Nash manufactured the blockbuster trade that sent John Williams to the Los Angeles Clippers for Don MacLean, who went on to garner the NBA's Most Improved Player award. Also in 1992, Nash dealt Tom Hammonds to the Charlotte Hornets for guard Rex Chapman.

But Nash's most significant trade took place on November 17, 1994, when he sent Tom Gugliotta to the Golden State Warriors in exchange for 1994 Rookie of the Year Chris Webber.

But it wasn't only through trades that Nash was able to improve the plight of the Bullets. Over his five-year stint with Washington, Nash oversaw the drafting of first-round picks Juwan Howard, Gugliotta and Calbert Cheaney and second round selections Brent Price and Jim McIlvane. Nash was also responsible for drafting Romania's Gheorghe Muresan with the 30th overall pick in the 1993 Draft. Muresan has subsequently developed into a major inside presence in the NBA, and was named the NBA's Most Improved Player this past season.

Prior to joining the Bullets, Nash had a nine-year run with the Philadelphia 76ers, where he was a "full-service" general manager, handling both the business and basketball operations for the franchise. Besides his duties in player personnel, Nash supervised marketing, ticket sales and radio and television broadcasts. His tenure with the Sixers was highlighted by the capturing of the 1983 World Championship.

Nash's basketball experience has not been limited to the professional ranks as he enjoyed a six-year run as Executive Director of the Big Five, an association of major colleges (LaSalle, Pennsylvania, Temple, Villanova and St. Joseph's) in Philadelphia. His primary role was to coordinate the schedules for marketing and television purposes and to facilitate promotion of the five colleges.

When he is not concentrating on roundball, John Nash ventures towards his favorite hobby -- horse racing. The 49-year old executive managed advertising and promotions for the Atlantic City Race Course during the late '70s, and owns a modest thoroughbred farm in Pennsylvania.

WILLIS REED

SENIOR VICE PRESIDENT/ BASKETBALL OPERATIONS

He will forever be remembered in metropolitan basketball lore as " The Captain." And as he enters his eighth season with the New Jersey Nets, Willis Reed will utilize his more than three decades of basketball experience to help shape the basketball ship that will be comandeered by new Head Coach John Calipari.

Throughout his playing career, and then as a coach and member of senior management, Willis Reed has always been identified as a tireless worker with a keen sense of basketball talent. He drafted Derrick Coleman and Kenny Anderson, who both achieved All-Star status with New Jersey, and engineered the trade that brought the late Drazen Petrovic to the Nets, who was an All-NBA selection prior to his untimely death.

In his new position, Willis Reed is committed to one ideal, the same one that he has had since joining the Nets; bring to the Nets the best players possible to build a championship team. "I am very enthused about the hiring of John Calipari as the Nets head coach, and I will do whatever I can to make the Nets organization successful."

Success defined Willis Reed on the basketball court, where he led the New York Knicks to two NBA titles over a career that spanned 10 seasons. Drafted out of Grambling as the number eight selection in the second round of the 1964 Draft, Willis went on to be named the NBA Rookie of the Year in 1965.

In New York's first championship season of 1969-70, Willis was named the MVP in the NBA's regular season, the All-Star Game and the Playoffs, a feat not duplicated until Michael Jordan completed the hat trick during the Bull's title run this past season. In 1981, Willis Reed was selected to the NBA Hall of Fame in Springfield, Massachusetts, solidifying his place as one of the elite players to have competed in the NBA.

Reed began his coaching career in 1977 with New York and became the Nets head coach in 1988. Besides his passion for basketball, Willis has been a visible advocate on the importance of a quality education for today's youth.

A native of Bernice, Louisiana, Willis and his wife Gale reside in South Orange, New Jersey.

JAMES LAMPARIELLO

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT OF ADMINISTRATION

Jim Lampariello enters his 15th season with the Nets as their Executive Vice President of Administration. Lampariello, who has held many positions with the Nets, is responsible for all day-to-day operations of the club. His responsibilities include overseeing box office operations, public relations and numerous additional aspects essential to the running of an NBA franchise.

Lampariello joined the Nets in 1981, when he served as Director of Public Relations. Prior to coming to the Nets, he served in the public relations departments of Rutgers and Seton Hall Universities. Jim has also worked as a reporter for both WOR Radio and the Morristown Daily Record.

An active member of the local community, Jim is a member of the Board of Directors of the Easter Seals and the Valerie Fund, and is instrumental in fostering the team's involvement in combating drug and alcohol awareness in the surrounding school districts.

As a graduate of Seton Hall, Jim was inducted into his alma mater's Hall of Fame in 1991. His honors include an NBA Authentics Award of Excellence and the Owen Keefe Trophy during Seton Hall's Final Four season. Jim and his wife Maureen have three children, John, Michael and Jimmy.

RAY SCHAETZLE

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT OF FINANCE

Now entering his 11th season as a member of the Nets' front office, Ray Schaetzle serves as the club's Executive Vice President of Finance, a position to which he was promoted to in January of this year.

Schaetzle's primary functions include overseeing the accounting department, monitoring the Nets' finances, ensuring all taxation requirements are met and undertaking salary analysis of both team personnel and the front office staff. Schaetzle is also the man responsible for assuring the Nets are within NBA Salary Cap guidelines, a critical function of life in the NBA in the '90's. Ray works closely with Nets' President Michael Rowe with regard to these often complicated rules and regulations, providing expert analysis on the financial aspects of any player transaction.

Initially hired as the club's Controller in March 1987, Schaetzle was promoted to Senior Vice President of Finance three years later. Prior to joining the Nets, Schaetzle was Controller for the New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League and worked for team owner Donald Trump on various real estate and casino projects.

A 1979 accounting graduate of St. Peter's College, Ray and his wife Donna make their home in Rutherford, New Jersey. During his spare time, Ray is heavily involved in local charity work and helps organize an annual charity golf tournament for St. Mary's Grammar School in Rutherford.

LEO EHRLINE

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT OF SALES/MARKETING

Although a new addition to the New Jersey Nets this year, Leo Ehrline did not have to travel far to start his position as Executive Vice President of Sales and Marketing. Ehrline was General Manager of the Meadowlands Sports Complex and spent his entire 18-year professional career working for the New Jersey Sports & Exposition Authority before coming to the Nets in early June.

At the NJSEA, Ehrline worked his way up through many positions, including Box Office Manager and Director of Marketing, to his position as General Manager when he left. His accomplishments and responsibilities as GM included selling the naming rights of the Arena to Continental Airlines, as well as overseeing all other areas of the sports complex's marketing functions. Ehrline's duties with the Nets will be to oversee the team's sponsorship and ticket sales operations and to ensure a positive reception of the Nets in the marketplace with both fans and sponsors.

A native of Medford, New Jersey, Ehrline graduated from Notre Dame University with a BBA in Finance. He and his wife Kathy have two sons, Leo IV and John Louis. He loves golf, ice hockey, rugby and is still a diehard Notre Dame fan.

BOB MORAN

SENIOR VICE PRESIDENT OF MARKETING SERVICES

One of the stalwarts of the Nets executive staff is Bob Moran, who enters his 15th season with the team and shows the same enthusiasm now as he did his first day on the job.

Moran joined the Nets in February of 1982 as Director of Promotions. In the ensuing years, he has served the Nets as Director of Corporate Sales, Vice President of Promotional Sales, Vice President of Television & Corporate Sales and Vice President of Marketing Services.

In January of 1996, Moran was promoted to his current position of Senior Vice President of Marketing Services. In this role, the affable Moran is responsible for the development of marketing and sales plans as well as preparing the marketing services budget. Bob undertakes the key responsibility of training the marketing and sales personnel, as well as soliciting major corporate sponsors and managing promotions. Bob also maintains a close working relationship with the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority regarding Nets game operations and advertising opportunities.

Prior to joining the Nets, Moran held positions with the Rochester Red Wings, the AAA affiliate of the Baltimore Orioles, and with the Rochester Lancers of the North American Soccer League. Bob was also Assistant General Manager and Director of Marketing and Sales for the Rochester Flash of the American Soccer League from April of 1981 until he joined the Nets later that year.

Moran graduated C.W. Post College of Long Island University in 1973 with a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration. Bob and his wife Gay reside on Long Island. The couple have one daughter, Kelly, who is attending Seton Hall University.

LOU TERMINELLO

SENIOR VICE PRESIDENT

Lou Terminello, who has been with the New Jersey Nets since June 1981, was promoted to his current position of Senior Vice President of Sponsorship Sales in January of 1996.

During his tenure with the Nets, Terminello has held a variety of positions. Beginning as a Regional Sales Manager when the Nets staff numbered 15, Terminello has successfully worked his way up the corporate ladder. From his initial position, Terminello became the Director of Sales in 1983, a post he held for the next six years. In 1989, Lou was promoted to Vice President of Sales, and in 1991, he was elevated to Vice President of Sponsorship Sales, a position he held until his latest promotion.

Terminello is responsible for the development and sale of sponsorship packages, the setting and meeting of budgets, pricing policy on sponsorship programs and the sale of courtside advertising as well as radio and television commercials.

A native of Hoboken, New Jersey, and now residing in Hackensack, Terminello attended Hoboken High School and went on to major in History at Fairleigh Dickinson University, graduating with a Bachelor of Arts degree. Lou notes spectator sports, traveling and reading as his favorite hobbies.

BRETT YORMARK

SENIOR VICE PRESIDENT OF SPONSOR PROGRAMS

In his second tour of duty with the Nets, Brett Yormark was promoted to Senior Vice President of Sponsor Programs in January of 1996.

Yormark's primary responsibilities include the development of television and signage packages for sponsors. Brett also sets and monitors revenue projections for both television and signage in the marketing department. He works closely with other members of the department in presenting proposals to active sponsors as well as potential sponsors.

Initially hired by the Nets in 1988, Brett spent two seasons with the team in various sales capacities. He moved on to a position with Katz Communications and then rejoined the NBA with the Detroit Pistons, where he marketed multi-media packages and undertook event marketing for the the Pistons and The Palace at Auburn Hills. Yormark returned to the Nets in April of 1994 as Vice President of Sponsor Programs.

A native of Morristown, New Jersey, Brett is a 1988 graduate of Indiana University, where he majored in business administration. Brett is single and resides in Montville, New Jersey. He enjoys traveling and playing golf.

AMY SCHEER

VICE PRESIDENT OF BROADCASTING OPERATIONS

Amy Scheer has been responsible for the Nets' Broadcasting Operations since 1987, and in January of 1996 she was promoted to her current position of Vice President of Broadcasting Operations.

Hired in June of 1986 as a Season Ticket Sales Executive, Scheer quickly progressed to Broadcasting Coordinator and then to Director of Broadcasting, a position she occupied until her latest promotion. Her current role encompasses the production of Nets radio broadcasts, including personnel decisions, and an increased role in the television end of the Nets' broadcast operation. Scheer also works closely with the Nets' advertising agency and produces all television and radio commercials.

Scheer joined the Nets after graduating from the University of Massachusetts with a Bachelor of Science degree in Sports Management. Amy interned at the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority in 1986 under current Nets President Michael Rowe.

A native of Fair Lawn, New Jersey, Scheer is single and resides in Fort Lee, New Jersey. Amy enjoys cycling, playing and watching tennis and listening to good music.

ROB CHIBBARO

VICE PRESIDENT OF TICKET SALES

Over the past several years, the New Jersey Nets have initiated a number of new and innovative programs designed to increase ticket sales. The key to a successful sales force is creativity and aggressiveness, which is typified by Rob Chibbaro. In January of this year, Chibbaro was promoted to Vice President of Ticket Sales, capping a rapid rise up the Nets' organizational ladder.

Hired in 1991 as a Ticket Sales Executive, Chibbaro went on to serve as a Team Leader and then Director of Ticket Sales before his latest promotion. As Vice President, Rob is responsible for formulating and implementing plans for all ticket sales, which include group bookings, season tickets, mini-season tickets and the Nets' Monster Game packages. He oversees a sales staff of 20, and implements marketing programs and sales techniques which are aimed at reaching his ultimate goal of 41 sellout dates.

Prior to joining the Nets, Chibbaro worked for a Sports Management company in Philadelphia. He is a 1990 graduate of the University of Delaware, where he majored in Political Science. A Princeton, New Jersey native, Chibbaro is single and currently resides close to the Nets' offices in East Rutherford.

Don Casey

Assistant Coach

The current campaign will mark the first for Don Casey as the senior member of John Calipari's initial coaching staff.

Casey began his NBA career in 1982 when he became an assistant for the Chicago Bulls under head coach Paul Westhead and then later held the same role with Jim Lynam's Los Angeles Clippers. After a brief stay as a head coach in Italy, Casey returned to the Clippers as an assistant coach. On January 19, 1989, Casey replaced Gene Shue as the Clipper's head coach, a post he held for the remainder of the season. He joined the Celtics the following season and was with them for six seasons before joining the Nets.

Don coached at the collegiate level at Temple University, becoming their head coach in 1973. He compiled an impressive record of 151-94 (.616) over his eight-year tenure, posting three 20-win seasons and guiding the Owls to one NCAA bid and three NIT berths.

Don is a native of Collingswood, New Jersey, attending Camden Catholic High School in Camden, New Jersey. His first head coaching assignment came at the age of 20 at Bishop Eustace High School in Pennsauken, New Jersey, where he went on to win two state championships. His teams compiled a record of 116-38 (.758) and had a 37-game winning streak from 1961-63.

Don and his wife Dwynne are the proud parents of three children, Lee Ann, Michael and Sean.

Kenny Gattison

Assistant Coach

Kenny Gattison begins his second career in the NBA as a member of John Calipari's coaching staff.

Gattison played nine years in the NBA, averaging 7.9 points and 4.7 rebounds. A six-year member of the Charlotte Hornets, Kenny led the team in field goal percentage in four of his six seasons, shooting better than 50 percent from the field five times. He had his best season as a pro in 1991-92, finishing fifth on the Hornets in scoring with a career-high 12.7 average.

A 1986 graduate of Old Dominion, the 6-8 Gattison and his wife Wanda have two sons, Kyle Tyler (5) and Bryce (2).

Ed Schilling
Assistant Coach

Ed Schilling begins his initital campaign in the NBA after spending last season on John Calipari's staff at the University of Massachusetts-Amherst. Schilling was the Minutemen's head scouting coordinator and was involved in game preparation and individual workouts.

Schilling has had a speedy rise up the basketball ladder, as just two seasons ago, he was completing his fourth year as the head coach at Logansport (Ind.) High School. He led Logansport to the sectional championship in both 1994 and 1995 and was named the Pharos-Tribune Coach of the Year in 1995.

Schilling is a 1988 graduate of Miami (Ohio) University with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Education. He was a two-time captain and four-year starter for the Redskins' basketball team, which advanced to the NCAA Tournament in both 1985 and 1986. Schilling set the Miami career, single-season and single-game records for assists, recording the third-highest career assist total in Mid-American Conference history.

Schilling and his wife Shawn are the parents of a daughter, Christiana.

David Pendergraft
Director of Player Personnel

David Pendergraft joins the Nets front office after spending last season as a scout for the expansion Vancouver Grizzlies.

Prior to joining the Grizzlies scouting staff, Pendergraft was the Assistant Coach and Recruiting Coordinator at Texas Christian University. Pendergraft spent nine years in a similar capacity with the University of North Carolina at Charlotte from 1985-94.

A native of Cary, N.C., Pendergraft began his college coaching career at East Carolina University in 1979 and remained there for six years. He played college basketball at Brevard Community College in Florida before transferring to Catawaba College in North Carolina for his final two years. David graduated with a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Physical Education in 1979.

Ted Arzonico

Trainer

Ted Arzonico enters his fifth year as the athletic trainer of the New Jersey Nets, assuming the reins as head trainer following the retirement of his mentor, Hall-of-Fame trainer Fritz Massman. The New Jersey native administers to the immediate medical needs of the team's players with much of his training time spent in the area of preventive medicine, including nutrition, treatment of injuries and ailments and rehabilitation. Ted is also responsible for the Nets' air and ground transportation, as well as hotel accommodations while on the road.

Ted completed his undergraduate work at Central Connecticut State University, where he received a BS in Physical Education. He went on to receive his Masters Degree in Sports Medicine from Springfield College. Certified by the NATA (National Athletic Trainers Association), Arzonico was the head trainer for West Essex High School in Caldwell, New Jersey and St. Thomas Aquinas College before coming to the Nets. In 1994, Ted served as the Athletic Training Coordinator for the New Jersey/ New York venue during the World Cup.

Arzonico is single and lists racquetball, waverunners and mountain biking as his favorite recreational pursuits.

Ray Oliver

Strength & Conditioning Coach

Ray "Rock" Oliver joins the Nets organization as the team's strength and conditioning coach, bringing more than 15 years of collegiate and NFL experience to the position.

For the past four years, Oliver has been the Director of Strength and Conditioning at the University of South Carolina. Ray came to USC from the NFL's Tampa Bay Buccaneers, where he was the Head Strength Coach in 1992.

Before entering the world of professional football, "Rock" spent three years at the University of Kentucky as the strength and conditioning coach for Rick Pitino's Wildcats. He has also had stints at the University of Pittsburgh, University of Kansas and the University of Cincinnati and working relationships with a number of NFL teams.

Oliver played two years of football at Ohio State University as a defensive back in 1980-81 and received his Bachelor's Degree in Exercise Science from the University of Kansas in 1987.

Ray, a native of Cincinnati, and wife Winone have a daughter, Ashley Rhae, and a son, Michael Ray.

On November 20, 1993, Orlando's Shaquille O'Neal became the first opponent in Nets NBA history to record a triple-double that included blocked shots. Shaq attacked the Nets for 24 points, 28 rebounds and 15 blocks. O'Neal's triple-double was the first against the Nets in amost three seasons. Until last season, only one other blocked shot triple-double had been recorded in Nets history, that by the Nets' George Johnson at New Orleans on March 21, 1978, when he had 17 points, 13 rebounds and 12 blocks.

Most people associate Lou Carnesecca with St. John's basketball, but few know that he also had a stint as head coach of the Nets. In 1969, one of new owner Roy Boe's first moves was to move the team (then the New York Nets) to Island Garden in West Hempstead. He then hired Coach C as Head Coach and General Manager. Since Carnesecca still had a year left on his contract with St. John's, York Larese was hired in the interim. The next season, Carnesecca took over, and Rick Barry was brought in to lead the team on the floor. New York finished third in the ABA's Eastern Division that season with a 40-44 record. They met the Virginia Squires in the playoffs, but bowed out after six close games. The next year they reversed their record, going 44-40 and advancing to the ABA Finals before losing to Indiana. Coach Carnesecca's third season was a disappointment, ending with a 30-54 record and first round playoff loss to the Carolina Cougars. That's when Carnesecca decided he preferred the college game to the pros, and returned to St. John's. Kevin Loughery succeeded him and went 55-29 his first year as head coach of the Nets.

More than 150 people have taken the court for the Nets in the NBA over the years, representing schools from Arizona to Yale. Three universities have had five alumni move on to play with the Nets: North Carolina, Michigan and Maryland. Syracuse, St. John's and Arizona have each sent four players to New Jersey. Meanwhile, Rutgers, UNLV, Depaul, Indiana and Marquette have produced three Nets apiece. The Nets also have had three players who did not attend any college: Bill Willoughby and Darryl Dawkins made the jump from high school, and the late Drazen Petrovic came from Croatia.

The 1973-74 ABA Championship marked the first of two for the New York Nets. After an early nine-game losing streak pushed the team's record to 4-10, the Nets ran off 19 victories in 22 games en route to a league-best 55-29 record.

Julius Erving led the Nets and the league in scoring at a 27.4 ppg clip. He also added 2.43 blocks per game and another 2.26 steals per game, both third in the ABA. Mike Gale came in fifth in steals per game with 2.09. Billy Paultz was the only other Net to finish in the top five in any category, ranking fifth in blocks at 1.91 per game. Erving also got some help from Larry Kenon and John Williamson, both of whom made the league's All-Rookie team.

The head coach was Kevin Loughery, his first season in that position. Rod Thorn, now the NBA's Vice-President of Operations, was the lone assistant. The Nets led the ABA in attendance as well, averaging nearly 9,000 per game.

In the playoffs, New York beat Virginia four games to one in the first round, swept Kentucky in four games in round two, and eased by Utah in five games to capture the championship. Julius Erving won the regular season and playoff MVP Awards.

"No matter how good you are... you need to know the team is behind you."

Sandlot or Major League, it takes a team to win a ballgame.

In baseball, business, or banking – it takes a team to reach the top.

Individual effort goes a long way. But no matter how good you are, you have to trust the team behind you. To follow through. To get the job done. To get the job done right.

That's the kind of teamplayer you'll find at Chase. We're the leading bank for business because, like you, we play hard. We play to win. And we love the game.

The Nets and Philadelphia 76ers were involved in one of the strangest games in NBA history. The contest originally began November 8, 1978, but was suspended due to an official's error. The game concluded on March 23, 1979. The strange part of the game was that in the period of time between the start of the game and the conclusion, New Jersey's Eric Money was traded to Philadelphia for Harvey Catchings and Ralph Simpson. Each of the three players had appeared in the original game and each participated for their new team in the conclusion of the contest. This may mark the only game in professional sports history where players appeared for both teams in the same contest. Money was the only player to score for both teams. He had 23 points for the Nets and four for Philadephia. The Sixers won the game, 137-133.

Perhaps the greatest performance ever by a Nets opponent was staged by a former Net. Bernard King, who was drafted out of Tennessee with the Nets' first pick in 1977, scored 60 points for the New York Knicks at Madison Square Garden on Christmas Day, 1984. King played 41 minutes, made 19-30 from the field and 22-26 from the line. His 60 points set a modern MSG record, a Knicks all-time high, and a career-high. But King was not enough to overcome New Jersey. Micheal Ray Richardson went 16-17 from the charity stripe and scored 36 points to lead the Nets to a 120-114 victory.

On February 8, 1978, the Indiana Pacers lost to the Nets 140-138 in overtime at New Jersey. During the game, the Pacers, whose squad had been reduced to nine players in uniform by injury and illness, had five players foul out. The result of this was the use of a seldom-used NBA rule. In the overtime period, Dan Roundfield became the fifth Pacer to foul out. According to the rule, he had to stay in the game since the Pacers had only four players left with fewer than six fouls. Indiana was assesed a technical foul for having a player in the game who had fouled out. Each subsequent Pacer personal foul resulted in a technical foul. A total of 77 fouls were whistled, 39 going against New Jersey. The only player not to commit a personal was the Nets' Wilson Washington, who played 31 minutes.

John Williamson had 38 points to lead the Nets. Kevin Porter's 18 assists equaled Indiana's total. Roundfield poured in 26 points and grabbed 15 rebounds, while the Pacers' James Edwards scored 26 points with 14 boards. Indiana had four players post double-figure rebounds, while the Nets had none.

The first time the Nets were ever eliminated from the playoffs, they had the circus to blame. Then called the "Americans," New Jersey finished the 1967 season with a 36-42 record. That mark tied the Kentucky Colonels for the fourth and final playoff spot. To break the tie, the Americans would host a one-game playoff. The problem was their home arena, then the Teaneck Armory, was booked. The circus was in town. So owner Arthur Brown scrambled to find another court, eventually deciding on Commack Arena on Long Island. When the teams arrived for the game, they found loose floorboards, unscrewed bolts and unpadded basket stanchions. Kentucky refused to play and ABA commissioner George Mikan ruled the game a forfeit in favor of the Colonels. New Jersey's first taste of playoff action ended without so much as a jump ball.

On February 14, 1975, the Nets and the San Diego Conquistadors played the longest, the highest scoring and one of the most exciting games in ABA history. The game lasted four overtimes before San Diego pulled out a 176-166 win. The matchup featured 63 points from the Nets' Julius Erving. Dr. J went 25-46 from the field, and the Nets as a team shot 64-131. Teammate Brian Taylor chipped in with five three-pointers and nine steals.

During the 1977-78 season, Nets guard Kevin Porter posted the five best and seven of the top nine assist games in New Jersey history. He also had the top four assist games in the NBA that year. Porter led the NBA in assists and his 801 are the most for a season in Nets history. To top it off, on February 24, 1978, Porter handed out 29 assists, breaking the 15-year old record for assists in a game of 28, shared by Bob Cousy and Guy Rodgers.

1995-96 Nets in Bold

The Nets thought they were on their way to an ABA championship after the 1971-72 season, but a court order forced them back to the drawing board. With Rick Barry leading the league in FT Percentage (.878) and pumping in 31.4 ppg., the Nets made the ABA Finals in 1972, eventually falling to the Indiana Pacers in six games. Following the draft, which brought the Nets All-American Brian Taylor from Princeton and Jim Chones from Marquette, a court order forced Barry back to the NBA's Golden State Warriors. Having lost their best player and first bonafide star, the Nets stumbled to a 30-54 record. They got the heave-ho in the first round of the 1973 playoffs at the hands of the Carolina Cougars.

*1995-96 Nets in Bold

As far as can be determined, the first triple-double to be recorded in a New Jersey game was by Connie Hawkins of the Pittsburgh Pipers on December 19, 1967. The Hawk had 29 points, 12 rebounds and 11 assists as Pittsburgh crushed New Jersey 146-124 at Pittsburgh. Hawkins also recorded the first triple-double in a New Jersey home game when he had 32 points, 19 rebounds and 10 assists as the Pipers defeated New Jersey 124-119 on January 24, 1968. The first triple-double by a New Jersey player was recorded by Walt Simon, who had 24 points, 15 rebounds and 10 assists on February 12, 1968, as New Jersey defeated the New Orleans Buccaneers 118-109 at New Jersey.

Michael Jordan has had a lot of success against the Nets in his career. His 10 steals on January 29, 1988 tied a Nets opponent record. He also had nine steals on April 2, 1993 at Chicago. But it was during the 1986-87 season that Jordan may have done the most damage.

Jordan averaged 15.6 FTM and 17.2 FTA (total 78-86) in the Bulls' five games vs. New Jersey that year. He scored 40.0 ppg against the Nets, including a 58-point performance on February 26, 1987 that saw him hit 26 of 27 attempts from the line. His 26 free throws made in that contest are the fourth-highest total in NBA history. With all of Jordan's help, however, the Nets were still able to pull out two of the five games.

During the 1973-74 season two players set all-time pro basketball records against the Nets. On December 26, 1973, Ted McClain of the Carolina Cougars, coached by Larry Brown, had 12 steals in a game at Raleigh. On February 3, 1974, Artis Gilmore became the first player in almost five years to grab 40 rebounds in a game. He is also the last player to achieve that feat. Gilmore, of the Kentucky Colonels, did not set an all-time record with that mark, but his 34 defensive rebounds are the most ever since that statistic began being recorded.

The Nets made a less-than-stellar impression in their first year in the NBA. Having won the final ABA Championship the year before, management added Nate "Tiny" Archibald to improve the team's backcourt. Teamed with Julius Erving, the Nets looked tough to beat. The franchise fell apart, however, when Erving got into a salary dispute with owner Roy Boe. Boe responded by selling Erving to the Philadelphia 76ers for three million dollars. Archibald would break his foot in January, thereby ending any hope the team had left of making the playoffs. The 1976-77 Nets finished with the league's worst record at 22-60.

Nets 1995-96 Season in Review

Big changes were the name of the game for the Nets during the 1995-96 season. Management pulled off a pair of blockbuster trades, named a new head coach shortly after the season concluded and then waved good-bye to a trio of players key to the team's 95-96 performance. The month-by-month rundown:

NOVEMBER 1995 (5-8)

- Opening the season with eight of 13 games on the road, the Nets compiled a 5-8 record, with all five victories coming at the Meadowlands.
- The season opener was historic, as the Nets faced the expansion Raptors in Toronto. The 94-79 loss started a month in which the Nets failed to win on the road, including all four outings on the team's first West Coast swing.
- Intimidating defense was the story at the Meadowlands, with no opponent scoring more than 84 points in the Nets' gym. Rivals averaged just 82 ppg at the Meadowlands in November. On the road, the Nets' most impressive statistical line came in defeat, when they recorded 15 steals and blocked eight shots in a 99-92 loss at Sacramento on November 26.
- On November 30, Nets President Michael Rowe and General Manager Willis Reed pulled the trigger on a major trade with Philadelphia. The Nets obtained 7'6" center Shawn Bradley, forward Tim Perry and guard Greg Graham in exchange for former All-Star forward Derrick Coleman, forward Sean Higgins and guard Rex Walters.

DECEMBER 1995 (5-9, 10-17)

- The month of December saw the Nets adjusting to the three new players in coach Butch Beard's lineup.
- The Nets snapped an eight game road losing streak on the opening day of the month, winning 131-123 in an overtime thriller at Boston.
- Further road wins came at Cleveland on December 9 (85-73) and at Philadelphia on December 23 (98-85). The Cleveland win came despite 21 turnovers, while the Philadelphia win saw the Nets record 29 assists.
- Wins at the Meadowlands over Cleveland and Indiana stretched the home winning streak to seven, before Orlando squeaked by the Nets 101-97. The Nets suffered a mini-slump after that first home loss, dropping the next three at home to Utah, Miami in OT and Golden State.
- After two months of play, Jayson Williams was the NBA's fifth-leading rebounder with 11.5 rpg. Adding strength to the Nets' arsenal were Kenny Anderson, 16.6 ppg, and P.J. Brown with 12.4 ppg and 5.7 rpg.
- The Nets entered the new year with a 10-17 record, good for sixth place in the Atlantic Division.

JANUARY 1996 (7-9, 17-26)

- With 11 of 17 games scheduled for the Continental Airlines Arena, the Nets saw January as the month to establish themselves as legitimate playoff contenders.
- Unfortunately, the home court dominance evident early in the season disappeared, and the Nets posted just six wins at home en route to a 7-9 showing for the month. A home game against Atlanta on January 7 was postponed due to the "Blizzard of "96," the first time in franchise history that a home game had been canceled due to snow.
- The month of January will be best remembered for the blockbuster trade engineered by Nets President Michael Rowe and General Manager Willis Reed. On January 19, the Nets acquired Kendall Gill and Khalid Reeves from Charlotte for Kenny Anderson and Gerald Glass. It was also announced in January that the Nets would host the 1996 NBA Draft, to be held on June 26.
- The Nets' problems on the road continued, with the only win away from New Jersey coming in Charlotte, where they were victorious 97-93 on January 17.
- Armon Gilliam continued his strong play, averaging a double- double for the month. His nightly averages of 20.9 ppg and 10.1 rpg were of All-Star caliber. Jayson Williams continued to dominate the glass, pulling in 12.1 rpg. Twice he had 20+ boards in a game, including a career-high 25 at Seattle January 30. Chris Childs had a career-best 30 points vs. Minnesota on January 20, and posted nightly marks of 12.7 ppg and 4.9 apg. Childs assumed the starting point guard duties after the Anderson trade.

FEBRUARY (7-6, 24-32)

- The month of February saw the Nets struggle early, but rally to post an impressive post-All-Star win streak that enabled them to finish the month with a winning record.
- The month began on a positive note, with the Nets beating Vancouver 93-84 (Feb. 2), the second game of a two-week West Coast swing. The results of the remainder of the five-game trip were on the negative side of the ledger, even though the team's play was encouraging. The Nets suffered losses at the hands of Golden State, the Lakers and Phoenix, with each contest undecided until the final minutes of the game.
- Following the All-Star Break, the Nets won five consecutive games, their longest winning streak in four years. Victories at Indiana (101-92, Feb. 13), at home against Indiana (88-87, Feb. 14) and New York (82-77, Feb. 17), at Washington and at Milwaukee (99-81, Feb. 19 and 94-92, Feb. 21) comprised the win skein.
- Armon Gilliam enjoyed the finest week of his nine-year career the week of Feb. 12 when he averaged 28 ppg in the wins over New York and Indiana (twice). He also averaged just under 10 rpg. Those numbers earned him NBA Player of the Week honors, the first Net so honored since 1994. Gilliam also notched his 10,000th career point on February 21 against Milwaukee.
- The Nets were not entirely prosperous during the win streak, as newly-acquired guard Kendall Gill broke the index finger on his left hand against Indiana on Feb. 14, sidelining him for the rest of the season.
- The Nets ended the month with a 7-6 record, their first winning month of the 1995-96 campaign and their first since April 1994.

MARCH (4-11, 28-43)

- The Nets' aspirations of making a run at a playoff berth were seriously impeded in March when the team posted a 4-11 mark, which was especially disappointing in light of their winning record in February.
- There were several significant individual achievements during the 15-game March schedule. Center Shawn Bradley posted his first career triple-double against Washington on March 14 (19 points, 17 rebounds and 11 blocked shots), becoming only the fifth player in NBA history to record double-figure blocks in consecutive games (10 vs. Phoenix, March 12). Also on March 12, Rick Mahorn became the 34th player in league history to play in 1,000 games.
- Point guard Chris Childs recorded his first career triple-double when he posted a line of 18 points, 10 rebounds and 14 assists against the Bulls on March 16. In the same game, Armon Gilliam pulled down his 5,000th career rebound.
- Vern Fleming reached the 10,000 career points plateau on March 22 against Detroit. Fleming became the 200th player in history to reach that level.

APRIL (2-9, 30-52)

- The final month of the 1995-96 season saw the Nets fail to make the playoffs for the second consecutive season. New Jersey posted a dismal 2-9 mark, ending the campaign with a record of 30-52, identical to last year.
- The April schedule saw the Nets with eight home contests, but the friendly confines of the Continental Airlines Arena did not inspire the team's play. After defeating the Los Angeles Clippers at home on April 3 (100-94), New Jersey went on a seven-game losing streak. Five of those losses came on their home floor.
- There were several individual career milestones of note during the month, including two major scoring outbursts. Forward P.J. Brown tallied a career-high 30 points against Toronto on April 17, and Jayson Williams netted a personal-best 35 in the season-ending loss at Atlanta.
- Center Shawn Bradley, whose improved play was one of the major stories in the NBA this year, became the first player in NBA history to record double-figure blocks in two consecutive games on two separate occasions. The 7'6" Bradley had a career-high 12 blocks vs. Toronto on April 17, and then rejected 10 Boston shots on April 19. Earlier this season, Bradley had 10 blocks against Phoenix on March 12 and 11 rejections against Washington on March 14.

JULY/AUGUST

- New Jersey saw free agents Chris Childs and P.J. Brown sign with New York and Miami, respectively. The Nets renounced their rights to free agents Armon Gilliam (who signed with Milwaukee), Vern Fleming, Rick Mahorn (Detroit), and Tim Perry. Greg Graham was traded to Seattle for Vincent Askew. Point guard Robert Pack signed a five-year deal with New Jersey. Forward David Benoit inked a one-year deal with the Nets.

Nets History at a Glance

1967-68: New ABA Franchise sold to Arthur Brown
Team Name: New Jersey Americans
Home Court: Teaneck Armory, Teaneck, N.J.
Final Record: 36-42 (.462)
Coach: Max Zaslofsky

Franchise known as the New Jersey Americans plays its first game on October 23. Team finishes season tied for last playoff spot with the Kentucky Colonels. New Jersey forced to forfeit game due to unplayable floor in Commack Arena (Long Island). Circus in Armory prevents game from being played in Teaneck.

1968-69: New Jersey Americans become New York Nets
Team Name: New York Nets
Home Court: Commack Arena, Commack, N.Y.
Final Record: 17-61 (.218)

On July 15, franchise moves to Commack, Long Island, becoming the New York Nets. Bobby Lloyd of Rutgers hits 49 free throws in a row over a 13-game span for a new ABA record. Walt Simon leads team with 21.1 ppg.

1969-70: Roy Boe purchases New York ABA franchise on May 26
Final Record: 39-45 (.464)
Coach: York Larese

Team transfers operations to Island Garden, Hempstead, L.I. on October 17. York Larese signs one year contract to coach the Nets. Bill Melchionni lured from Philadelphia 76ers. 1967 first round draft choice Sonny Dove of St. John's joins the club. Levern Tart leads the Nets in scoring with 24.1 ppg. Nets attain playoffs for first time but fall in semi-final round to Kentucky Colonels four games to three.

1970-71: Rick Barry comes to Nets from Virginia; Lou Carnesecca becomes Coach
Final Record: 40-44 (.476)
Coach: Lou Carnesecca

Rick Barry, who the Nets acquired from the Virginia Squires on September 2, averages 29.4 ppg and becomes the first Nets player to be named to the ABA All-League team. Lou Carnesecca leaves St. John's to assume Nets coaching duties. Nets reach playoffs for second consecutive season, but fall to Virginia four games to two in the semi-final round.

1971-72: Nets advance to ABA Final Round
Home Court: Nassau Veterans Memorial Coliseum, Uniondale, L.I.
Final Record: 44-40 (.524)

Barry averages 31.5 ppg and, along with Bill Melchionni, is named to the ABA All-League team. On February 11, the team changes its home court again, this time to the brand new Nassau Veterans Memorial Coliseum. The Nets, after completing their first winning season, attain the playoffs for the third consecutive year. They defeat Kentucky 4-2 and Virginia 4-3 to capture their first Eastern Conference crown. Nets then lose the ABA Championship Series to Indiana in six games.

1972-73: Court orders Barry to return to the NBA; Brian Taylor wins Rookie-of-the-Year
Final Record: 30-54 (.357)

Nets select and sign Princeton's Brian Taylor and Marquette's Jim Chones in the annual player draft. Taylor becomes the first Net to earn the ABA Rookie-of-the-Year. Both men are named to the ABA All-Rookie Team. George Carter leads the team in scoring, averaging 19.0 ppg. Nets make playoffs for the fourth consecutive year but feel the loss of Barry as they fall to the Carolina Cougars four games to one in the opening round.

1973-74: Nets win ABA Championship
Final Record: 55-29 (.655)
Coach: Kevin Loughery

Kevin Loughery signs on as Nets Head Coach. Julius "Dr. J" Erving is traded to the Nets by Virginia on August 1 along with Willie Sojourner in exchange for George Carter, draft rights to Kermit Washington, and cash. Erving averages 27.4 ppg in the regular season and 27.9 in the playoffs to lead the Nets to their first ABA Championship. In capturing the crown, the Nets set a record for the fewest games played in the playoffs to capture a championship (14). Erving is named ABA Most Valuable Player. Larry Kenon and John WIlliamson (signed as a free agent) are named to the All-Rookie Team.

1974-75: Nets tie for first division championship; lose one-game playoff to Kentucky
Final Record: 58-26 (.690)

Nets post their finest regular season record, finishing 58-26, but fall to the Spirits of St. Louis in just five games. The Nets had swept all 12 games from St. Louis during the regular season, winning those games by an average of 19 points. Julius Erving adds to his personal accomplishments by setting a single-game scoring record and personal career-high game with a 63-point performance in a marathon four-overtime loss in San Diego on February 14. He also leads the team in scoring for the second year in a row with a 27.8 average. Following the playoffs, Larry Kenon (June 3), Mike Gale (June 3) and Billy Paultz (September 8) are traded in separate deals.

1975-76: Nets win final ABA Championship
Final Record: 55-29 (.655)

Nets acquire Tim Bassett, Kim Hughes, Rich Jones and Jim Eakins. Dr. J again dominates, averaging 29.3 ppg and recapturing the league's scoring crown. He averages 34.6 ppg in the playoffs and is named regular season and playoff MVP, Sporting News Player-of-the-Year, and Basketball Weekly's MVP of all the pro ranks. The Nets defeat the San Antonio Spurs in seven games and the heavily favored Denver Nuggets in six.

1976-77: Nets, Spurs, Nuggets and Pacers join the NBA; Erving sent to Philadelphia
Final Record: 22-60 (.268)

ABA and NBA merge on June 17. Julius Erving is sold to Philadelphia on October 20 following a contract dispute. Brian Taylor and two first round draft picks are sent to Kansas City in exchange for Tiny Archibald on September 10. John Williamson is traded to the Indiana Pacers on January 31 for a first round pick. Robert "Bubbles" Hawkins leads the Nets in scoring with 19.3 ppg.

1977-78: Nets draft Bernard King in first round; franchise moves to New Jersey
Team Name: New Jersey Nets
Home Court: Rutgers Athletic Center, Piscataway, N.J.
Final Record: 24-58 (.293)

Franchise shifts operations to New Jersey on September 12. Bernard King has spectacular rookie season, finishing with a 24.2 scoring average and 9.5 rpg. Nets re-acquire John Williamson from Indiana on January 27 in exchange for Bob Carrington and two second round draft choices. New Jersey hires Charles Theokas as General Manager to replace Bill Melchionni, who resigns at the end of the season.

1978-79: Nets sold; Team makes NBA playoffs for first time
Final Record: 37-45 (.451)

A New Jersey businessmen's partnership headed by Joseph Taub and Alan Cohen purchases the franchise on August 28 and puts it on solid financial ground. John Williamson (22.2 ppg) and Bernard King (21.6 ppg) finish among the NBA's top twenty in scoring. George Johnson finishes second in blocked shots (253), and Ed Jordan finishes second in steals (201) to lead the Nets into the playoffs for the first time in the NBA. New Jersey falls to Philadelphia in two games.

1979-80: New Jersey trades Bernard King; Selects Calvin Natt and Cliff Robinson in NBA draft; Acquires Maurice Lucas and two first round picks for Natt in blockbuster trade
Final Record: 34-48 (.415)

Bernard King is traded to Utah for Rich Kelley on October 2, moving Calvin Natt into the starting lineup. Natt sparkles but is traded to Portland February eighth in exchange for Maurice Lucas and two first round picks. Williamson is traded to Washington for Roger Phegley on February 4 and Kelley is dealt to Phoenix February 15 for a 1982 first round pick. Cliff Robinson, after recovering from early season illness and injuries, begins to realize his potential. Mike Newlin, in his first year as a Net, enjoys his finest season as a pro, leading the team in scoring with a 20.9 average.

1980-81: New Jersey drafts Mike O'Koren and Mike Gminski; Kevin Loughery resigns and will be replaced by Larry Brown next season
Final Record: 24-58 (.293)

In New Jersey's final season at the Rutgers Athletic Center, Kevin Loughery, the Nets' coach for the past seven years, resigns in mid-December. Assistant Coach Bob MacKinnon replaces Loughery for the remainder of the season. Larry Brown is named head coach in March and will take over at season's end. Mike Newlin leads the team in scoring for the second straight year with 21.4 ppg. Mike Gminski and Darwin Cook finish among the league's top rookies in scoring.

1981-82: New Jersey opens in Byrne Arena and hosts 1982 NBA All-Star Game; Team finishes with its best ever NBA record and makes playoffs.
Home Court: Brendan Byrne Arena, East Rutherford, N.J.
Final Record: 44-38 (.537)
Coach: Larry Brown

In his first season as head coach, Larry Brown guides New Jersey into the NBA playoffs after starting the season 3-12. Nets deal for Otis Birdsong. Ray Williams, acquired from the Knicks October 25 for Maurice Lucas, leads the team in scoring at 20.4 ppg. Buck Williams is named Rookie-of-the-Year and is the first Net to appear in the NBA All-Star game. The 20 game won/loss difference from last year is the biggest turnaround of any team in the NBA. Average attendance of 13,875 is fourth best mark in the league.

1982-83: Nets add Darryl Dawkins in trade with Philadelphia; Larry Brown resigns as Head Coach
Final Record: 49-33 (.598)

Darryl Dawkins becomes a Net in an August 27 trade with Philadelphia. The Nets begin the season with Phil Ford replacing Ray Williams as point guard. Seven games into the season, Ford is traded for Mickey Johnson, whose fine all-around play leads the team to a franchise record 11 straight wins from December 23, 1982 to January 12, 1983. Johnson and '82 first round choice Sleepy Floyd are dealt to Golden State for guard Micheal Ray Richardson on February 6. New Jersey wins a team record 49 games. The Nets go into their second straight playoff appearance hobbled by injuries and without coach Larry Brown, who left the team for the University of Kansas April 7 with six games to play. Under interim coach Bill Blair, the Nets go 2-4 and fall to the Knicks in two straight playoff games. Albert King and Buck Williams tie for the team scoring lead at 17 ppg.

1983-84: Stan Albeck takes over coaching duties; Win 19 of 25 down the stretch and win first ever NBA Playoff Game and Series
Final Record: 45-37 (.549)
Coach: Stan Albeck

Albeck is named head coach June 8 and promises a Net playoff victory. Not only do the Nets win a game, but they eliminate defending World Champion Philadelphia three games to two before falling in six games to Milwaukee in the conference semi-finals. Darryl Dawkins makes his ninth NBA season his best, averaging 16.8 ppg and 6.7 rpg, while Buck Williams becomes only the ninth player ever to record 1,000 or more rebounds in his first three years. Otis Birdsong is named to the NBA All-Star Team and leads the club in scoring with a 19.8 average. The Nets make no trades for the first time in their NBA history.

1984-85: Nets log 223 games missed to injury; Team earns fourth consecutive playoff birth; Albeck resigns
Final Record: 42-40 (.512)

An amazing string of injuries sideline Darryl Dawkins for 43 games, Albert King 40, Mike O'Koren 39 and Otis Birdsong 26, just to name a few. Despite the physical woes which lead to 16 different rosters and 13 different starting lineups, Albeck guides the club to a winning record and a third place finish in the tough Atlantic Division. Richardson enjoys his best NBA campaign, making his fourth All-Star appearance and becoming the first player to win three steals titles. Richardson is named Comeback Player-of-the-Year. Williams leads the league in minutes played and becomes the eighth player and first forward to record 1,000 or more rebounds in each of his first four seasons. Albeck resigns June 13, 1985 to become head coach of the Chicago Bulls.

1985-86: Nets name Dave Wohl as their seventh Head Coach; Team finishes below .500 for first time in five years, but still makes playoffs for fifth consecutive season
Final Record: 39-43 (.476)
Coach: Dave Wohl

A long search for a new coach produces hard-working Dave Wohl, who immediately installs a running attack in New Jersey. Nets get out of gate quickly at 23-14 when Micheal Ray Richardson suffers a drug relapse. Richardson is banned from the league February 25 as a three-time violator of the NBA policy. Darryl Dawkins suffers a back injury and misses 31 of the last 32 games. Mike Gminski enjoys his best year, leading the team in scoring and having a career night April ninth, scoring 41 points and grabbing 22 rebounds in leading the club to a win over Boston. Buck Williams has another solid year and makes his third All-Star appearance.

1986-87: Nets fail to make playoffs for first time in six years; Harry Weltman joins club in March as Basketball General Manager
Final Record: 24-58 (.293)

Dave Wohl enters the season with optimism, but team is struck with injuries. Darryl Dawkins goes down with back pain after six games, Otis Birdsong is lost for the season after 13 games. Team loses a total of 252 games lost due to injury. Orlando Woolridge leads the club in scoring with a 20.7 average, the first Net forward to average 20+ since 1978-79. Buck Williams just misses a team rebounding record and is the only Net to play in all 82 games. Nets tie for the second-worst record in their history. Harry Weltman joins the team to head basketball operations and Dave Wohl signs a contract extension.

1987-88: Nets set league mark with 346 games lost to injury; Name NBA Hall of Fame Center Willis Reed Head Coach
Final Record: 19-63 (.231)

Nets sputter to a 2-13 start, leading to the release of head coach Dave Wohl December ninth. Assistant General Manager Bob MacKinnon takes over injury-riddled squad on an interim basis as club begins an extensive search for a head coach. Nets ownership and management proudly name legendary center Willis Reed to lead Nets on February 29. Buck Williams misses his first ever pro game due to injury, yet leads the club in scoring, rebounding and field goal percentage. Attendance increases for the first time since franchise shift to Meadowlands in 1981. Roy Hinson, John Bagley, Keith Lee and Tim McCormick are acquired via trades.

1988-89: Willis Reed completes leads club to best record in two seasons; Club acquires Joe Barry Carroll, Les Conner and Mike McGee before season
Final Record: 26-56 (.317)
Coach: Willis Reed

With seven new faces, the Nets immediately jump out to a 5-3 start and manage a .500 record through most of November before losing Joe Barry Carroll to injury, bringing on a six-game losing streak. The Nets post inspirational home victories over the Lakers, Celtics, Bulls and two wins over the Knicks. Roy Hinson leads the club in scoring while Buck Williams' 9.4 rpg mark his first season with less than a double-figure average. The Meadowlands is sold out five times while attendance increases for the second straight season.

1989-90: Willis Reed relinquishes coaching duties to become Senior VP/Basketball Operations; Bill Fitch takes over as Head Coach; Buck Williams traded for Sam Bowie; Harry Weltman resigns following season
Final Record: 17-65 (.207)
Coach: Bill Fitch

In August of 1989, Willis Reed moves to the front office as Bill Fitch takes over head coaching duties. Prior to the coaching change, the Nets trade eight-year veteran Buck Williams to Portland for center Sam Bowie and the twelfth pick in the draft, which is used to select point guard Mookie Blaylock. Bowie, after almost two years of inactivity due to leg problems, plays in 68 games and leads the team with 10.1 rebounds and 1.78 blocks a game. The Nets struggle throughout the season to their worst record in franchise history. Positives include holding the Celtics to a franchise-low 78 points and an all-time low six points in one quarter. Harry Weltman resigns May 8, citing health and personal goals.

1990-91: Derrick Coleman wins Rookie-of-the-Year honors; Bill Fitch records career victory number 800; Drazen Petrovic and Terry Mills acquired via trade
Final Record: 26-56 (.317)

The Nets finish the season with five rookies on the roster, including Rookie-of-the-Year Derrick Coleman. Coleman, chosen first overall in the 1990 draft, leads the Nets with 10.3 rebounds a game and is second in scoring with an 18.4 average. Reggie Theus, acquired from Orlando prior to the 1990 draft, leads the team in scoring with 18.6 ppg and moves into the 22nd spot on the league's all-time scoring list. Bill Fitch records win number 800 vs. Washington March 16, becoming the fourth winningest coach in league history (since passed by Lenny Wilkens). The Nets lead the league in blocked shots with 600 while averaging 102.9 ppg and 45.7 rpg.

1991-92: Nets make playoffs for first time since '86; Kenny Anderson selected with the second overall pick in the 1991 Draft; Bill Fitch resigns May 12
Final Record: 40-42 (.488)

Number one draft pick Kenny Anderson does not join the club until the fourth game of the season as the team struggles to a 2-11 start. The Nets are 7-18 in late December when they begin to turn things around, finishing with a 33-24 mark the rest of the year. The Nets are 21-14 (.600) after the All-Star break. Drazen Petrovic finishes second in the league on the season in three-point shooting at 44.4% (123-277). He also leads the team in scoring with 20.6 ppg. Derrick Coleman averages 9.5 rebounds and is second on the club in scoring at 19.8.The Nets reach the playoffs for the first time since 1986, finishing the year as the sixth seed in the Eastern Conference. Cleveland defeats the Nets in four games in the first round. The Nets post their playoff win at home in front of a Meadowlands crowd of 15,258. Petrovic leads the club in playoff scoring at 24.3 ppg while Coleman adds 22.3 ppg.

1992-93: NBA and Olympic Championship Coach Chuck Daly takes over Nets; Nets battle Cleveland in five game playoff series; Drazen Petrovic killed in automobile accident
Final Record: 43-39 (.524)
Coach: Chuck Daly

Chuck Daly, who guided the Pistons to two World Championships and the United States to the 1992 Olympic Gold medal, takes over the Nets and immediately makes an impression on his players. Daly has the Nets soaring with a 42-29 record in April, breathing down the necks of the first place Knicks. Starting point guard Kenny Anderson goes down with a broken wrist and the Nets stumble, finishing the season with a 1-10 fade. The Nets battle the Cavs in the playoffs, despite being without Anderson and centers Sam Bowie and Chris Dudley. Derrick Coleman nearly handles Cleveland by himself, posting monster numbers throughout the series. The Cavs win in five games. Tragedy strikes the Nets family in June, overshadowing the success of the season, when star shooting guard Drazen Petrovic is killed in an automobile accident on June 8 in Germany. Petro had given the Nets another wonderful year. His death left the Nets with an enormous hole to fill, both on the court and in their hearts.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar could easily have spent his career with the Nets, if not for a conservative contract offer. In 1968, the ABA granted then-Lew Alcindor's draft rights to the newly-renamed New York Nets. The league reasoned Alcindor was from the area, and the ABA needed to drum up some excitement in the country's number one market. Meanwhile in the NBA, Milwaukee held Alcindor's rights. To solve the problem, the young star decided to accept one sealed bid from each league. He would play for the team that offered him the most money. The Bucks submitted the higher numbers. When the Nets learned they had lost the sweepstakes, they went back with a higher offer, but it was too late. Alcindor went to the Bucks, and the Nets ended the 1968-69 campaign with a 17-61 record.

Nets History at a Glance

1993-94: Nets rally after difficult start to post club's second-best NBA mark; Playoff bound for the third straight season; Anderson and Coleman become first Nets to start NBA All-Star Game; Daly calls it a career
Final Record: 45-37(.549)

The Nets open the season with many new faces, struggle out of the gate, and stand at 13-20 on January 13. A season-high five game winning streak follows as New Jersey is one of the hottest teams in the NBA the rest of the season. Kenny Anderson and Derrick Coleman become the first Nets ever elected to start in the NBA All-Star game, which takes place in Minneapolis. Joining them in the Twin Cities is rookie P.J. Brown, selected to play in the first ever Schick Rookie All-Star Game. New Jersey falls in the first round of the playoffs to eventual NBA Finalist and cross river rival New York three games to one. The Nets won four of the five regular season meetings between the clubs. Head Coach Chuck Daly, who had been inducted into the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame during the season, retires from coaching in June to pursue a broadcasting career with both the Nets and TBS.

1994-95: Injury-plagued season as Nets miss playoffs for first time in four years; Gilliam named team MVP.
Final Record: 30-52 (.366)
Coach: Butch Beard

The Nets experience a difficult and inconsistent season due to the rash of injuries that hinder rookie head coach Butch Beard, who has to use 23 different starting lineups. Derrick Coleman and Kenny Anderson, All-Stars the year before, are beset by injuries throughout the season. Coleman averages a double-double, 20.5 ppg and 10.6 rpg, while Anderson finishes the season with 17.6 ppg and 9.4 apg averages. Armon Gilliam is named team MVP, as he averages 14.8 ppg and 7.5 rpg in 30 minutes per contest. The Nets break their all-time attendance record, attracting an average of 16,685 per contest.

NOTES

1. When a draft choice is mentioned, the player eventually selected either by the Nets or by the team that finally wound up with that draft choice is shown in parenthesis.

2. In trades, only what actually happened is listed. If a team had several options in a deal, only the one they decided to use is listed.

3. If a third team is not mentioned in the transaction, then assume any draft pick is the choice of the team the Nets are trading with or the Nets' choice.

BACK-TO-BACK

Several New Jersey players have had spectacular back-to-back games in different statistical categories:

- On April 2, 1978, John Williamson scored 40 points in a game at Atlanta. He followed that up on April 4 with a 50-point explosion at Indiana.
- In a game at Indiana on February 13, 1980, Ed Jordan had eight steals. The next night he recorded eight more thefts vs. Utah.
- Buck Williams had two 20 plus rebound nights against Detroit on January 18 and 21, 1984, grabbing 20 and 21 rebounds respectively.
- Kenny Anderson continued the tradition of strong back-to-back performances in 1992 by handing out a season high 17 assists on December 4, 1992 in an overtime win vs. San Antonio, and backing that up by dishing off 16 assists the next night against Miami.

Only UPS guarantees delivery at these three speeds:
Fast. Faster.
And impossible.

10:30 AM

8:30 AM

Same-Day

Does your package delivery company deliver at these three speeds? UPS does. UPS offers three express delivery options, each one guaranteed.* Overnight delviery by 10:30 AM. If needed earlier, there's overnight delivery by 8:00 AM. And for those increasingly frequent emergencies that can't wait until tomorrow, there's even same-day delivery via UPS SonicAir. UPS delivers all these ways to keep pace with the speed of business. A speed measured less by miles per hour, than by crises per hour.

The Nets' leading scorer in the 1976-77 campaign was named "Bubbles". Robert Hawkins averaged 19.3 ppg in 52 games to pace New Jersey. He stepped up after Julius Erving was traded and Tiny Archibald was hurt. Before coming to the Nets, Bubbles had averaged only 3.9 ppg with Golden State; he would only play 19 more games in two years after his career-best season.

On May 7, 1993, the Nets and Cavaliers combined to set or tie eight NBA Playoff Records. Derrick Coleman set an individual mark by rejecting nine Cleveland shots, the most ever recorded by a forward. The other seven records:

1) Fewest free throw attempts, game - New Jersey, 3.
2) Fewest free throws made, game - New Jersey, 3.
3) Highest free throw percentage, team - New Jersey, 100% (3-3).
4) Fewest free throw attempts, both teams - 16.
5) Fewest points, fourth quarter, team - New Jersey, 8.
6) Fewest points, fourth quarter, both teams - 26.
7) Fewest personal fouls, both teams - 25 (New Jersey 15, Cleveland 10)

The Nets won the game 96-79.

On May 4, 1994, the New Jersey Nets played their first-ever overtime game in the NBA Playoffs. New Jersey topped New York, 93-92, at the Meadowlands. Prior to this game, the Nets had tipped up 34 playoff games without going into an extra period, by far the longest active streak among NBA clubs.

The Nets have the distinction of having been the ninth and final ABA Champion. One month before the 1975-76 season, New York, where the franchise was then located, teamed up with Denver to apply for entry into the NBA. That was just one signal of the end of the ABA. Another was the league's decision to use a 24-second shot clock (rather than the original 30-second clock) to prepare for a possible merger.

During the season, Julius Erving averaged 29.3 ppg. and led the team to 55 wins. In the playoffs, New York defeated the San Antonio Spurs in the league semifinals. Then, in the Finals, the Nets topped the Nuggets in six games. Among the highlights: Doctor J's 45 points in a Game One victory at Denver (where the ABA attendance record of 19,034 was set), and the Nets coming back from a 22-point third-quarter deficit to capture the title in Game Six. Erving was named the Series MVP, and garnered his third regular-season MVP. A month later, New York joined Denver, San Antonio and Indiana in making the jump to the NBA.

Max Zaslofsky was the head coach in the Nets' inaugural season. Then the New Jersey Americans, the team posted a 36-42 record in the 1967 campaign. Zaslofsky says it was a challenge to coach. "We really had some semipro players," he recalled 15 years later. "They were not the caliber of players in the NBA, but each of them felt like a superstar. They were all prima donnas."

Yogi Berra tossed up the first jump ball when the Americans faced the Pittsburgh Pipers on October 23, 1967. Attendance was in the neighborhood of 3,000 fans.

Levern Tart led the team in scoring that first season, finishing third in the league at 23.6 ppg. But the team was third to last in defense and scored the fourth fewest ppg. In fact, the only area where they really excelled at was at the line. The team knocked down 74.3% of its free throws, good for second in the ABA. Three Americans finished in the league's top five in FT percentage. Unfortunately, good free throw shooting did not lure very many fans to the Teaneck Armory. On average, attendance was only about 2,000 spectators.

Nets head coach Stan Albeck made a pretty bold prediction before the start of the 1983-84 season, and it almost came back to haunt the team. Albeck assumed command on June 8, 1983, and promptly predicted a first-round playoff win. Known as "Stalag Stan" for his tough practices, Albeck guided the team to a 19-6 record down the stretch to cap off a 45-37 season. New Jersey earned the sixth seed in the playoffs and the right to play the defending champion Philadelphia 76ers in the first round. Coach Albeck looked good after the Nets won the first two games at the Spectrum in Philly. But the Sixers came back to win two straight at Brendan Byrne Arena, and it looked like the end was near. In Game Five, Otis Birdsong and Micheal Ray Richardson both had 24 points and six assists, and Buck Williams hauled down 16 rebounds to lead New Jersey to its first-ever NBA playoff series win. The Nets would go on to lose to the Milwaukee Bucks in the Conference semifinals in six games.

Nets vs. Cavs in 95-96

NETS 79, CAVS 78

at New Jersey, 12/2/95 (Game 15, 7-8)

Despite taking the floor without Shawn Bradley and Armon Gilliam, New Jersey increased its winning streak to three with a victory over the Cavaliers... The Nets also recorded their sixth win in a row at home... The Nets fought back from a 15-point halftime deficit, cutting the Cleveland lead to seven after three quarters... New Jersey trailed the entire game, largely because of poor shooting (37%), until P.J. Brown hit a 15-footer with 1:52 remaining to tie the game at 75... Posting a then career-high of 17 rebounds, Jayson Williams helped New Jersey outrebound the Cavs, 55-36... Ed O'Bannon had a career-high 11 rebounds... P.J. Brown had 10 boards... Williams led all scorers with 17 points... Kenny Anderson paced the Nets with 10 assists.

NETS 85, CAVS 73

at Cleveland, 12/9/95 (Game 18, 9-9)

New Jersey made it back to the .500 mark by beating the Cavaliers in Cleveland... Up by a bucket at the half, the Nets needed 10 Cavalier third-quarter turnovers to stay in the game... The game was knotted at 64 after three... The Nets turned it on in the final stanza, leading by as many as eight... Chris Childs played well in the fourth, scoring 14 of his then career- and game-high 17 points... The Nets won the battle of the boards, 42-39... Armon Gilliam and Jayson Williams each had eight rebounds... Kenny Anderson chipped in seven assists and P.J. Brown had six... New Jersey held Cleveland to just 5-27 from beyond the arc... The Nets connected on 5-9 from downtown... A sloppy game saw the Nets commit 21 turnovers, good for 21 points... The Cavaliers turned it over 15 times for 15 Nets points... Michael Cage had 14 rebs. (seven offensive).

at Cleveland, 2/24/96 (Game 53, 23-30)

New Jersey missed the chance to sweep the Cavaliers in the season series, and in the process, saw a five-game winning streak snapped... New Jersey never led after 8:13 to go in the first quarter... The Nets scored 31 first-half points, going into the locker room with a 19-point deficit... The Nets continued to struggle in the third, allowing the Cavs to convert six turnovers into 12 points and to outrebound New Jersey 9-3... The Nets' 74 points represented their lowest scoring output to that point in the season... The game may have been decided from behind the three-point line, where Cleveland shot 14-28 compared to the Nets' 0-6... Cleveland outrebounded the Nets, 39-27... New Jersey had 32 points in the paint, to the Cavaliers' 26... Armon Gilliam and Jayson Williams led the team with 15 points apiece... Gilliam reached double-figure points for the 52nd time in the 53 games he's played this year... His seven boards led the team, as did P.J. Brown's and Chris Childs' four assists... Five Cleveland players scored in double figures, led by Danny Ferry's 23.

From the "It's the name that counts" Department: The Houston Mavericks of the old ABA shot 36-36 from the line in a game against the Nets in the 1968-69 season. That's the second-best free throw shooting display of all time, ABA and NBA combined. Tony Jackson made 15-15 and Stew Johnson 10-10 to lead the way. The old Houston Mavericks, who became the Carolina Cougars after that season (and who would move to St. Louis in 1974), are not associated with the current Dallas team, which was founded in 1981.

The 1976-77 Nuggets were proof that the ABA had the talent to compete in the NBA. In their first season after the merger, Denver finished first in the Midwest Division at 50-32, the league's second-best record. They also boasted the league's second-best offense, scoring at a 112.6 ppg clip. The legendary David Thompson led the team with 25.9 ppg and 4.1 apg. Dan Issel chipped in at 22.3 ppg. The Nuggets did not fare so well in the playoffs, however. They bowed out in the conference semifinals to eventual NBA champion Portland in six games.

When a team plays a four-overtime game, usually you'd think some records would be set. So it was on February 1, 1987, when the Nets visited Golden State. The Nets set a team mark for FGA with 127. The Warriors set the Nets opponent record in the same category with 124. Buck Williams had 27 rebounds, a record. But that was it. The Nets made 59 FG, shot 27-34 FT, and scored 147 points. Golden State made 58 field goals, shot 34-44 free throws, and beat New Jersey with 150 points. None of those are records, though they come close. As for individuals, Orlando Woolridge had 24 points, 10 assists and 11 rebounds, his only triple-double as a Net. Future Net Joe Barry Carroll had 43 points and 24 rebounds for the Warriors.

Two 1995-96 Nets were once traded for one another. Minnesota chose Rick Mahorn in the 1989 expansion draft. But Mahorn, fresh off of winning a championship with Detroit, didn't want to play in Minnesota. So the T-Wolves dealt him to Philadelphia in exchange for a draft pick. That pick turned out to be Gerald Glass.

The San Antonio Spurs got their first team nickname from a door. In 1967, the owners of the ABA's Dallas team got together for their first meeting. It was held in the Chaparral room of the Dallas Sheraton. Since the team needed a name, someone looked at the door and made the suggestion. It stuck. Thus the first professional basketball team to play in Dallas was the Chaparrals.

NBA basketball made its return to Toronto last season after a 48-year hiatus. The Toronto Huskies were a charter member of the NBA. They played the first game in league history, losing to the Knicks 68-66 on November 1, 1946 in Toronto. Leo Mogus was the team's leading scorer at a scorching 13.0 ppg. The Huskies finished last in the Eastern Division with a 22-38 mark, folding after that inaugural season. The only action the city had seen until 1995 had been the occasional neutral-site contest.

NETS 82, GRIZZLIES 77

at New Jersey, 3/19/96 (Game 65, 26-39)

New Jersey snapped a four-game losing streak by beating the Grizzlies... New Jersey shot 20-35 (57%) from the field in the first half while Vancouver made 18-45 (40%), but New Jersey led by only four... With 5:21 to play in the fourth, Shawn Bradley and Greg Anthony fought for a loose ball on the floor, the two players tangled, and both were ejected from the game... Vancouver led 69-67 with 3:40 to play when Bryant Reeves missed two free throws and Gilliam grabbed the rebound and was fouled... Gilliam connected twice to tie the game at 69... The game was close down the stretch, but a steal and lay-up by Childs, followed by Vern Fleming's 16' jumper put the Nets up 75-71 with a little over two minutes left in the quarter... Vancouver came within two points three times, but the Nets were able to pull out a home victory... New Jersey shot 34-69 (49%) on the night while the Grizzlies made 33-89 (37%)... New Jersey outrebounded Vancouver 49-41... Shawn Bradley led all scorers with 17 points... Armon Gilliam's 10 boards paced the club as did Chris Childs' nine assists.

Guide to NBA Personnel Procedures

ACTIVE LIST: A team must carry a minimum of 11, and no more than 12, players on its active roster. At no time shall a team be permitted to dress fewer than eight players for a regular season game or nine for a playoff game. During the offseason and training camp, teams may carry no more than 20 active players.

INJURED LIST: Any player placed on the injured list due to injury or illness, must sit out at least five of his team's regular-season games before he may be restored to the active list. For players injured near the end of the season, players must sit out five games or as many games that remain in the regular season.

TRADING DEADLINE: No trades or sales among teams are permitted after 9:00 p.m. Eastern time, February20. From that point to the end of the regular season, player additions can be made through the waiver procedure or by acquiring free agents.

WAIVERS: From August 15 to the end of the regular season, clubs may claim waived players within 48 hours after notice. Players waived at any other time may be claimed within 10 days. If no teams claim the waived player, he becomes a free agent. If more than one club claims a waived player, the one with the lesser record at that time claims the player. The waiver price shall be $1,000 per player payable to the League Office

TEN-DAY CONTRACT: On or after the 55th day following the season's first game, a team may sign a player to a 10-day contract solely for the purpose of replacing an injured player. No player may be signed to more than two 10-day agreements by a single team in the same season.

GUARANTEED CONTRACT DATE: On the 56th day of the regular season, all player contracts become guaranteed for the remainder of the season.

AMATEUR ELIGIBILITY RENUNCIATION: A player whose high school class has graduated shall become eligible for the college draft if he renounces his intercollegiate basketball eligibility by written notice to the NBA at least 45 days prior to the draft. Prior to 45 days before the draft, teams may not make direct or indirect contact with players who have eligibility left. Clubs may contact players without remaining eligibility, but may not discuss compensation.

TRADING OF FIRST DRAFT CHOICES: No team may sell or trade its right to select a player in the first round of the college draft if the result of such an exchange would be to leave the club without first-round picks in any two consecutive college drafts.

PRE-DRAFT CAMPS: Prior to the college draft, teams are prohibited from conducting so-called "mini-camps" for prospective players eligible for the draft.

SALARY CAP: The league salary cap is based on players receiving 53% of gross revenues. The 1996-97 salary cap is $24,300,000.

NBA Playoff Format

1. Sixteen teams qualify for the playoffs: Eight teams from each conference, consisting of the two division champions and the six other teams in each conference with the best winning percentage during the regular season.

2. The first round of the playoffs shall be a best-of-five series with all succeeding rounds, including the NBA World Championship Series, being best-of-seven. All teams will participate in the first round. Byes that formerly went to division winners have been eliminated.

The following are the playoff pairings:

Note: Team 1 in each conference is the division winner with the better record, Team 2 is the other division winner and Teams 3-8 are ranked according to their regular-season winning percentage.

NBA Playoff Tie-Breaking Procedures

Two-Way Tie

In order to break a tie for playoff positions at the close of the regular season, the following criteria will be utilized in the order set forth:

1. Results of games against each other.
2. Better winning percentage within own conference.
3. Better winning percentage within own division (only if tied teams are in the same division).
4. Better winning percentage against playoff opponents in own conference.
5. Point differential in games against each other.
6. Better point differential between offense and defense.

More Than Two Teams Tied

1. Best cumulative winning percentage in total games involving all teams tied.
2. Best winning percentage within own conference.
3. Best winning percentage within own division (only if tied teams are in same division).
4. Best winning percentage against playoff opponents in own conference.
5. Best point differential between offense and defense.

If a multiple team tie is reduced to a two-team tie at any point using the above criteria, the two-team tie will be resolved in accordance with the existing two-team tie procedure.

Ian Eagle

Ian Eagle begins his second year as the television play-by-play announcer for Nets telecasts, adding to his resume as one of the top young sportscasters in the nation. A 1990 graduate of Syracuse University, Ian was the play-by-play voice of the Orangemen in football, basketball and lacrosse, and was awarded the Bob Costas Award for Outstanding Sportscasting. "The Bird" joined WFAN as a producer in 1990 and debuted as host of his own show in 1992. The following year, Eagle began hosting pre- and post-game shows for Jets football on WFAN. He was named the radio voice of the Nets in 1994, and moved into the television slot the following year. For the past two years, he has been the English-language voice for the international telecast of the NBA Finals.

Bill Raftery

Bill Raftery will begin his 14th year as a New Jersey Nets analyst when he puts the headphones on for the 1996-97 campaign. One of the most visible television analysts in the nation, Raftery combines his NBA work with his NCAA commentary for both ESPN and CBS. Bill began his broadcasting career in 1982 with SportsChannel and ESPN after an 11-year stint as head basketball coach at Seton Hall University. The Pirates posted a 154-141 mark under Raftery, including three ECAC Tournament bids and two NIT appearances.

Jim Spanarkel

Former NBA player and Duke All-American Jim Spanarkel is the color commentator for Nets telecasts when Bill Raftery is on assignment. Spanarkel is a 1979 graduate of Duke University, and was selected by the Philadelphia 76ers with the 16th pick overall in that year's draft. After playing one season with the Sixers, Jim moved on to the Dallas Mavericks for four seasons. In the 1981 season, he led the club in scoring, averaging 14.4 points per game.

Steve Danz

Steve Danz ,a veteran of two decades in the sports television business, begins his second season as producer Nets telecasts. basketball telecasts. Danz began his communications career in 1977 as an editor with the New York Post and a writer for ABC Sports. He then moved to NBC Sports as a statistician, where he advanced to the producer's chair for the Major League Baseball Game of the Week, NFL Football and NCAA Basketball. In 1988, Danz switched networks, moving back to ABC Sports to produce Monday Night Baseball, the ALCS and the USA Olympic Boxing Trials. He joined SportsChannel America in 1989 as a senior producer.

Dave Hagen

Dave Hagen is in his second full season as director of Nets telecasts on SportsChannel. The versatile Hagen, a veteran of 20 years in sports television, began his career in 1976 as a freelance cameraman and then moved on to a 15-year relationship with NBC in 1980. During that period, Hagen won three Emmy Awards which were earned for his work on the 1982 Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade and on the 1986 and 1988 World Series. Dave's work has included tennis' U.S. Open, the NBA All-Star Game and the NBA Finals. He and his wife Carly are the proud parents of four children, Kyle, Jack, Brett and Carly.

SPORTS CHANNEL

New Jersey Nets Radio

The 1996-97 season will see the New Jersey Nets begin a multi-year affiliation with one of the most popular and durable radio stations in the metropolitan area, WOR 710 AM.

America's Talk and Information station, WOR Radio is the longest running continuously programmed radio station in New York. Rich with history and tradition, starting with its morning program, Rambling With Gambling, WOR Radio continues to set the pace for listeners in the New York, New Jersey and Connecticut area with award-winning news, the brightest and most popular talent in talk radio, and more information than any other radio station in the market. WOR Radio is also the home of Giants and Rutgers football.

Bob Papa

With its 50,000 watt clear-channel signal, WOR provides one of the strongest, clearest signals on the East Coast, easily reaching as far north as Boston and as far south as Philadelphia. WOR is one of the few radio stations in the country that regularly appears in Arbitron metros outside its own.

Bob Papa will begin his initial season as the Nets play-by-play voice on WOR. Bob is considered one of the nations top young sportscasters, with Giants football, ESPN boxing and Olympic boxing just a few of his credits.

Mike O'Koren

Bob will be joined by former Net Mike O'Koren, who will begin his seventh season as the team's radio color analyst. The former North Carolina product played seven years with the Nets, averaging 8.5 points per game.

In addition, Mike is a very visible Nets representative throughout the year, as he champions the Nets Speakers Bureau. Over the past year, Mike has visited with literally hundreds of groups throughout the area, speaking on the value of education and the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse while displaying his many basketball skills.

Covering the Nets

The Nets are covered on a regular basis by five daily New Jersey and New York newspapers. The Bergen Record and the Newark Star Ledger are the New Jersey-based papers that cover the team both home and away. These papers are joined by the New York Times, New York Post and New York Daily News in providing sports fans in the metropolitan area with extensive and in-depth coverage of the Nets. In addition to these five newspapers, the Nets are covered by the wide array of television, radio, newspapers and magazines that detail the NBA in the New Jersey/New York area.

Media Information

The New Jersey Nets appreciate the cooperation and coverage given the club and looks forward to their 19th season in the NBA, and 15th at the Meadowlands.

Nets media credentials are issued for the purpose of providing access to locker rooms, media work rooms and the press lounge, and in most cases, courtside seating. Credentials must be visible at all times. At no time should a credential be used for access to a locker room for autographs.

Season credentials will be issued to recognized daily newspapers, radio and television stations that plan to cover all Nets home games and who make a reasonable request on company stationary.

Individual game credentials should be requested a minimum of 24 hours prior to game time (Friday noon for weekend contests). These passes may be picked up two (2) hours prior to game time at the press window located in the main ticket lobby of the Arena.

Single-game photo passes will be issued in the same manner as other credentials. Weekly papers and magazines on assignment may obtain passes by having the Photo Editor request a single game credential either in writing or by phone. Free lance photographers requesting credentials must submit a letter with a specific assignment from a publication.

Limitations and guidlines for credential use appear on the back of your credential and on signs in the press room. Please adhere to these regulations.

The press room is located on the court level, downstairs from the main ticket lobby. No guests are allowed in the press room. It is for working media only.

The Nets and visitors locker rooms are located on the court level on the same side of the Arena as the press room. In accordance with NBA policy, locker rooms will be open to members of the media for a 45 minute period which will conclude 45 minutes prior to game time, and 10 minutes after the conclusion of the game.

Parking passes are given to season credential holders only. Parking passes for visiting media are available by calling the Nets Public Relations Department 48 hours prior to the scheduled game.

Game notes, line-ups, scoring sheets and current program inserts will be available in the press room two (2) hours prior to game time. Programs will be available on a limited basis. Play-by-play sheets and half-time and final boxes will be delivered to all media at the table and in the press room. Telecopier service is available by contacting the Public Relations Department.

Special requests and additional information can be gained by contacting John Mertz, Gary Sussman or Christy Calvin at the Nets office, 201-935-8888 or by FAX at 201-935-1088.

The NBA, its teams, players and coaches support programs dedicated to helping build a better future for all people with a special emphasis on youth.

The 1996-97 seson marks the debut of the NBA's league-wide community outreach initiative, entitled the NBA TeamUp program. Its primary goal is to encourage youth to become actively involved in their communities. TeamUp helps young people develop an understanding of critical issues facing society and focuses on their ability to make a difference in the lives of others through community service projects. Program components include public service announcements, motivational visits by NBA spokesmen and players, and a national youth service award.

This season, the league also introduces the NBA Sportsmanship Initiative, a program designed to recognize and promote the importance of sportsmanship on the court. The nationwide program, implemented by the NBA in conjunction with the National Federation of State High School Associations, targets high school student-athletes participating in basketball. Each year, an NBA player will be selected to receive the NBA Sportsmanship Award for demonstrating sportsmanship throughout the season.

The NBA also continues its supports of Black History Month, CARE, the Martin Luther King, Jr. holiday, the National Committee to Prevent Child Abuse and Reading Is Fundamental through a variety of community outreach programs.

In addition, the NBA's 29 teams remain actively involved in supporting various programs that positively impact their local communities in the United States and Canada.

NETS IN THE COMMUNITY

The New Jersey Nets have long prided themselves on being a very active and concerned member of the local community, working with numerous civic and charitable organizations throughout the New Jersey/New York metropolitan area.

The team's commitment embraces a wide spectrum of concerns, as they strive to make a significant difference in the community. Several examples of that commitment are illustrated on the following pages.

BELL ATLANTIC NYNEX MOBILE STAY IN SCHOOL

The New Jersey Nets hosted the 3rd Annual Bell Atlantic NYNEX Mobile "Stay in School" Celebration at the Continental Airlines Arena on April 19. Schools throughout New Jersey, New York and Connecticut sent more than 8,000 middle school students to the music and entertainment-filled jamboree.

New Jersey Nets Shawn Bradley, Ed O'Bannon and Greg Graham were on hand to inspire the large turnout in addition to Giants running back Tyrone Wheatley and former All-Pro linebacker Harry Carson.

Among the other celebrities in attendance were WABC-TV sportscaster Scott Clark, WNBC-TV weathercaster Janice Huff and WWOR-TV anchorwoman Brenda Blackmon. Total Entertainment provided the music and dancing entertainment for the two-hour presentation while the GT Bicycle Air Show thrilled the audience with its high-flying performance.

Lonnie Lauer, the Regional Vice President for Bell Atlantic NYNEX Mobile, joined the celebrities in welcoming the students to the Celebration.

NETS IN THE COMMUNITY

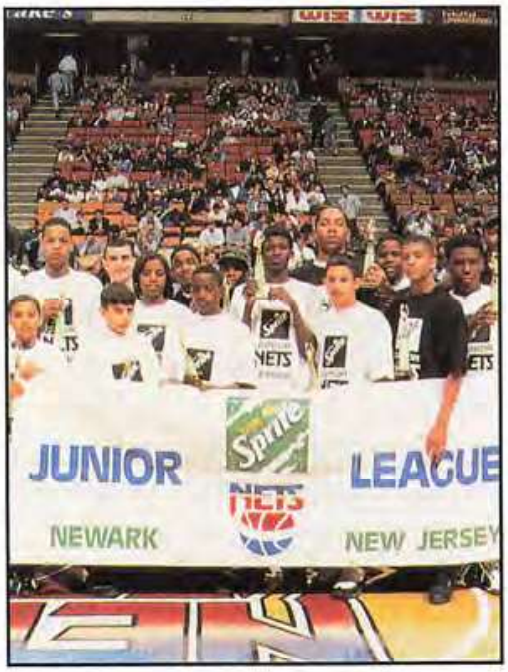
HACKENSACK MEDICAL CENTER

The New Jersey Nets enjoy a strong relationship with the Hackensack Medical Center and the Tomorrow's Children's Institute, which is an integral part of the Center's operation. Nets' players are frequent visitors to the HMC during the Christmas season as well as at different points during the year, providing gifts, signing autographs and boosting the spirits of the numerous children they visit.

In addition to the HMC visits, Nets forward Jayson Williams staged a softball tournament involving radio station WPLJ and the Chippendale Dancers to raise money for the Institute. This year's inaugural charity contest netted more than $3,500 for the TCI.

SPRITE JUNIOR NETS LEAGUE

Now in its fourth season, the Sprite Junior Nets League is a five-month program, from November thru March, which emphasizes education through sports. The program targets communities throughout the New Jersey area for local competition, with more than 1,500 participants.



This past season, the League originated in Jersey City, Newark, Passaic, Elizabeth, Clifton, Paterson, Lodi and Hoboken, with each community awarding its own League champion. A championship tournament, contested between the League champions, was played at the Continental Airlines Arena, with Newark named the overall champion.

The Nets Rick Mahorn served as League Commissioner and visited each of the communities to lend his and the Nets' support to this worthwhile project.

NETS IN THE COMMUNITY

SAINT BARNABAS BURN FOUNDATION

Even though the Nets were not regarded as one of the NBA's premier outside shooting teams, they were able to make every three-pointer count for a very worthwhile cause.

The Nets donated $50 for every trey they made to the Saint Barnabas Burn Foundation, which totalled $8,000 dollars. Dr. E. Hani Mansour of the Foundation accepts the check from Brett Yormark, the Nets Senior V.P. of Sponsorship Sales.

LIGHTHOUSE COMMUNITY CENTER

The Nets last year continued their long affiliation with the Lighthouse Community Center in Newark. Nets players and staff have provided meals, entertainment and gifts during the Thanksgiving holiday and have contributed funds for the operation of the Center.

This past season, Nets players raised $5,500 for the Lighthouse Foundation. The Nets Rick Mahorn is shown with Rev. Stephen Parrot of the Lighthouse Foundation, who was on hand to accept the contribution from the team.

SPONSOR PROGRAMS

Each season, Nets players and sponsors team up to contribute to various charities through performance on the court. As the MetLife Net of the Year, Armon Gilliam donated $3,000 to the Valerie Fund. TotalTel awarded free minutes each month to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation in the name of the Nets player with the highest free throw percentage for the month. This program resulted in 695 free minutes donated to the Foundation. And Sharp, which presents the SharpShooter of the Month award monthly to the Nets top marksman, donates a TV and VCR to the charity of the player's choice. Tom Myketian, Marketing Manager for Sharp, is pictured with Kevin Edwards, the November recipient of the award.
